FORMAL EDUCATION & ACADEMIC POSITIONS

Postdoctoral Research Fellow University of Surrey Research Culture & Open Research	2021 – present
PhD Psychology Kingston University Thesis: Dispelling illusions of truth: Exploring the factors that lead to inflated truth judgements Supervisors: Prof Frédéric Vallée-Tourangeau & Prof Chris Chambers	2017 – 2021
Ad-hoc Lecturer Kingston University Department of Psychology Module: Research Design & Analysis	2018 – 2020
Research Associate Kingston University Business School Department of Management [full-time, paid position]	2016 – 2017
MSc Psychology (Distinction) Kingston University	2015 – 2016
BA (Hons) Classical Civilisation University of Leeds	1996 – 1998

RESEARCH INTERESTS

In my research I investigate how people might use non-probative cues, such as repetition and concreteness of language, to make truth judgements in the absence of any probative information or knowledge. I focus on the replicability of these truth effects with a view to understanding the robustness of the literature, and the implications of their real-world application.

PRINCIPLES & VALUES

My goal is to conduct and promote rigorous, transparent science ethically throughout my career. I write and publish confirmatory research as Registered Reports. I use the Open Science Framework (OSF) to share materials, data, scripts and lab logs. I prioritise submitting papers to open access outlets that select based on scientific validity rather than subjective impact.
